Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Ain t Women Wonderful?: A Comedy in One Act Scene. - Combined living-room and office in home of Laura Epping. French door, rear, disclosing porch and garden exterior. Door, right rear. Door, left front. (Curtain rises disclosing Laura Epping dictating a speech to her secretary, Jane Claggett. Mrs. Epping is a woman of about forty-eight, in the stylish-stout classification, a decided brunette with an alert who said rats expression, and a pugnacious manner. Her costume is shepherd s plaid with mannish tendencies; pockets in skirt, vest beneath tailored coat, standing collar with Windsor tie, coarse woolen stockings and brogans on her feet. Her pince-nez dangles from a broad black velvet ribbon, when she is not using it for emphasis in her nearly constant gesturing. She usually stands, at those rare moments when she is not in motion, with legs well apart rocking from heels to toes most complacently. At present she is striding up and down, employing large gestures as she makes her points. Claggett is seemingly nondescript. A drab person of less than thirty, yet seeming considerably over forty. Her hair is tightly drawn over her head. Her clothes have all the mode of a burlap sack, and although one knows, of course, that they really haven t been slept in, one can t be too positive that they were not slept on. However, she is highly efficient, and etches her stenographic notes in a bored manner.) About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
